Media based AI is currently threatening to destroy creative industry in our country and across the world. Regulation of AI products should be immediately enacted to control this dangerous technology and keep jobs available for creatives and to protect their intellectual property. AI is also already a highly exploitable resource that is being used to undermine our society and standard of safety and education.

At the current stage, the most popular AI models are built on stolen intellectual property gathered by scraping internet databases of artwork and writing. Internet users have been sharing their creative output for years predating the advent of this technology. These users should have federal protections that keep AIs from being trained using their work without their knowledge or compensation.

Additionally, AI has already begun to replace American jobs. Employers have begun to terminate employment of voice actors and artists in favor of utilizing these AI models which were
