AI, in its current state, is abused to the point where any potential ethical usage is hamstrung by the slate of bad actors utilizing it to steal from artists, writers, musicians, and so forth. All creative industries are in danger because there is no compensation to the original creators of works which are scraped and blended into a glorious mélange of plagiarism.

Additionally, using AI to reproduce someone's voice or likeness without identifying the result as a transformative work should be subject to fines and/or classified as a misdemeanor at the very least, as it can be used for various crimes such as scamming, identity theft, impersonation, character assassination, misrepresentation, fraud, and so forth.
