Regarding docket number NTIA-2023-0005

Currently, AI systems are scraping data from copyrighted works without authors' consent with the intent of commercial exploitation. This is not acceptable from an ethical perspective as well as from a legal one. These systems need to request permission from authors/creators before using a work, and they need to purge the data they've previously collected that was not ethically obtained. Please adopt a policy that works used in AI creations or training must secure the express consent of the original creator before they can be used.
